Marmaris lies in a bay with crystal-clear water. This is where the Mediterranean meets the Aegean Sea. Fragrant pine woods stretch out along the mountain crests. Marmaris is the perfect destination for relaxed days on the beach. There's lots to see and do and plenty of sun to be basked in.

THE CITY

Aygul Sarvarova/Shutterstock.com

Marmaris has grown from a tiny fishing village into one of the biggest tourist resorts in Turkey. Even so, the town centre is still quite small, and in the old quarter behind the marina you can stroll around amid the delightful hustle and bustle of bazaars and street life.

For a beautiful view of the Bay of Marmaris, visit Suleiman the Magnificent's castle in the Old Town. Marmaris' neighbouring resort, Içmeler, lies just a few miles away. Many people like to walk along the beach, which also gives you an idea of how much is happening in the boat scene, and the wide range of water sports available along the beaches.

While Marmaris offers more buzz and entertainment, Içmeler boasts better beaches. It is also child-friendly and newly built. Turkey's rich and famous people tend to congregate in the marina at Marmaris, which means there are good restaurants and great shops. During the high season, there are as many as ten thousand boats in the Bay of Marmaris, reckoned to be one of the finest bays in the world. There are several excellent long-distance footpaths in the mountains, and many opportunities for excursions amid the beautiful scenery and the little villages along the coast.

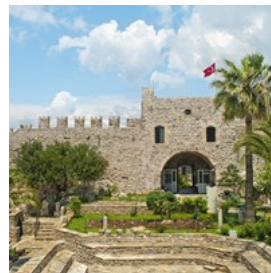

DO & SEE

Evdokimov Maxim/Shutterstock.com

Marmaris is a popular Turkish Holiday resort with plenty to do if you like beaches, history and culture. Enjoy an authentic Turkish Hamam or visit one of the nearby towns or islands: your holiday here will be full of sun and excitement.

Marmaris Castle And Archaeology Museum

The little fort dating from 1522 has been restored and is worth a visit, though the most remarkable aspect is still its view of Marmaris. The museum hosts various artifacts from antiquity and several Medieval cannons.

Datça Peninsula

The road across the Datça peninsula has stunning scenery, with steep mountains, ravines and flat countryside. Datça is an attractive village about 90 kilometres west of Marmaris. From Körmen, just north of Datça, there are boats to the port city of Bodrum. At the Saturday market in Datça you will find food, household utensils, beautiful tablecloths and clothes. You can reach it with local transportation.

Kaunos, Dalyan

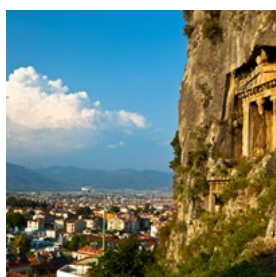

Travelling eastward from Marmaris takes you along the famous Lycian coast. Near the Dalyan River, about 80 kilometres east of Marmaris, are the spectacular rock tombs of Kaunos, and untamed scenery. The Loggerhead turtle comes here to lay its eggs on the beaches. The river's mud is used for therapeutic clay packing, which is regarded as very health-giving. You can come here on excursion bus or dolmus taxi.

Address: Kaunos, Dalyan Mahallesi, Ortaca/Köyceğiz/Muğla Province

Fethiye

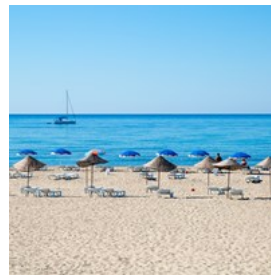

This is a quiet little town surrounded by fields of fruit and tomatoes, ideal for family trips. Almynta's tomb is the town's symbol, and nearby there are several Lycian graves. In the market there are small fish counters where you can choose what fish you want to eat. One of Turkey's most spectacular beaches, Ölüdeniz (the Dead Sea, meaning the Calm Sea), lies about 25 minutes by bus from Fethiye's centre. Come here on a local bus or dolmus.

Address: Fethiye, Muğla Province

Patara & Demre

The long and beautiful Patara beach, with its protected sand dunes, is where the sea turtles come to lay their eggs. The ancient town, hidden beneath the sands, is now being excavated. Patara is best known as the birthplace of St Nicholas, also called Santa Claus or Father Christmas. You can visit his grave at Demre. Come here on the local bus or dolmus.

Rhodes

The Greek island of Rhodes is a very popular destination for excursions, with its plethora of churches, monasteries, mosques and mediaeval buildings. Both UNESCO and the European Union are protecting this unique cultural heritage, with the Old Town being one of Europe's most authentic medieval sites. There are daily boat trips to Rhodes and the journey takes 1 hour.

Pamukkale

Pamukkale really is one of nature's wonders. There are terraces with pools, and the water runs down from one level to the next in a natural spectacle created by white lime deposits. The name means "The Cotton-wool Fortress."

Unfortunately, too many visitors have created a lot of wear and tear on the cliffs, and now most of the pools are closed to the public. There are daily excursions here, but you can also take the local bus. The travelling time is about 3.5 hours.

BEACH LIFE

Kalin Eftimov/Shutterstock.com

You can go swimming right in the middle of Marmaris, and the beach stretches all the way to the neighbouring town İçmeler. There are boats and dolmus to the beaches at Turunç, Çiftlik and Kumlubükü, and many yachts and sailing boats go there as well. Marmaris has several international diving schools. It is also possible to get to the beautiful little island of Sedir Adalari. The sand there is unique, and legend has it that it was brought here by Queen Cleopatra 2,000 years ago.

DINING

Elnur/Shutterstock.com

Turkish cuisine is regarded as one of the finest in the world. The Turks eat a great deal of meat, though not pork, and note that not all restaurants serve alcohol. Nevertheless, Marmaris has restaurants to suit all tastes and wallets.

Pineapple

Pineapple is a prestigious restaurant frequented by Oil Sheiks and celebrities who have moored their yachts in the marina. The food is top-class, and so

CAFES

Repina Valeriya/Shutterstock.com

Sometimes it is hard to tell a café and a bar apart. Places that serve tea and coffee during the daytime transform themselves in the evening and become part of the nightlife. What is really nice is to sit somewhere on the beach promenade, admiring the traditional gulet boats and other sailing boats while sipping some apple tea or a refreshing drink.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Kalin Eftimov/Shutterstock.com

Night owls will find plenty of entertainment options in Marmaris. Near Marmaris Marina there is Bar Street, a place whose name explains itself. There are so many bars, pubs and discos that it's hard to choose your favourite one, but it's certainly fun to try. Another area with a lively nightlife, even if not as lively as Bar Street, is U, where many hotels are located as well. Step into the nightlife of Marmaris as the city shows you a beautiful other side that only happens when the moon comes out to show itself. As you walk the streets, you realize that this is a place where you can truly leave all your stress behind.

SHOPPING

Klemen Misic/Shutterstock.com

First, a brief warning: Marmaris is a big tourist destination, so you have to keep an eye on high prices and fake versions of branded goods. For instance, check that you can actually change the batteries of a watch, or it will be an expensive throwaway. Haggling is also essential. That said, it can still be a lot of fun just to wander around the bazaar that stretches over several blocks in the town centre. You will find carpets, leather jackets, tablecloths, pirated designer goods and souvenirs are all kinds. At the local market (Thursdays in Marmaris and Fridays in İçmeler) you can buy also fresh products and spices.

Pasha Jewellery

Gold, silver and diamonds are of course what you can expect when you enter Pasha Jewellery. The store itself has beautiful displays of their wares and is an oasis of tranquility opposed to the busy streets.

Best Time to Visit

The hot and humid summer months are high season in Marmaris, so the best months to visit are May, June and September, when there are fewer crowds, the temperatures are pleasant and rain is not frequent. However, thanks to its Mediterranean climate, Marmaris is enjoyable all year round. Winters are usually mild and rainy.

Passport / Visa

Tourists from the majority of countries belonging to the Schengen Area can enter Turkey without a visa for periods of 30 up to 90 days.

Other countries that benefit from visa-free access are Azerbaijan, Belarus, Belize, Bolivia, Ecuador, Iran, Kosovo, Kyrgyzstan, Jordan, Lebanon, Mongolia, Morocco, Qatar, Russia, Tajikistan, Thailand, Tunisia, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan.

There are 42 countries that have permission to apply for an e-Visa online, among which are Australia, Belgium, Canada, China, Ireland, Mexico, Portugal, South Africa, Spain, the UK and the US.

National identity cards are accepted instead of passports for citizens of Belgium, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Moldova, Netherlands, Northern Cyprus, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and Ukraine.

If you're not sure whether to apply for a visa and how long you can stay in Turkey, we advise that you visit the Turkish Ministry of Foreign Affairs website or contact the embassy or consulate in your country.

Public transport

The simplest, cheapest and most popular way to go around is to take a so-called dolmus. You can also take a minibus or a large taxi. They depart when they are full and stop wherever you want. The dolmus often depart outside supermarkets and from central Marmaris. From the Otogar bus station, buses set off for other destinations in Turkey. It is a good idea to book a seat in advance. Many bus companies run services along the same routes. You can also take a taxi boat if you want to go to one of the nearby villages, like Icmeler.
