Turin, Italy's first capital, is a city awash with history, green parks and art, not to mention that it is a town with renowned food and even better drinks. Under the arcades of the city centre there are countless wine bars, grandiose continental cafés and lively bars and restaurants, all just steps away from luxury shopping streets. Even if it is mostly known abroad for Fiat and Juventus, Turin is a fascinating metropolis with its eyes set firmly on the future thanks to its young population and great universities.

THE CITY

Giancarlo Liguori/Shutterstock.com

Turin is ideally located at the foot of the Alps, which you will have the chance to admire from anywhere in the city. The city has its roots in the 20th century industrialisation and in the struggle for democracy and progress of that period. But today, in particular after the Olympic Games of 2006, Turin has turned into a lively and coloured place awash of students and young workers, also thanks to the University and the Polytechnic of Turin - the best in Italy.

The struggle to unify Italy started in Piedmont, which is why Turin became the country's first capital city, but before that it was the centre of the Savoy Reign. Thanks to this noble family, Turin is rich in history and art of every sort. In addition, having been the centre of Italian automation during the 20th century, the city is also an important hub for contemporary arts, in particular for design and movie making.

DO & SEE

RossHelen/Shutterstock.com

Turin's vivid history still colours the atmosphere of the entire city. Walking in the streets of Turin, its past as capital of the richest reign of Southern Europe is plain to see: stunning palaces, squares and arches cover the entire city centre, giving to it a magic aura. In Turin are also settled some of the most important museums in Italy, as the Egyptian Museum (second only to the one in Cairo), and the Museum of Cinema located in the building-symbol of the city - Mole Antonelliana.

Besides art and history, in Turin you can also enjoy open air activities both in the city centre - in its huge park Valentino - and in the vicinity, where dozens of Savoy's estates are located with their amazing gardens and parks. Last but not least, if you are a sport enthusiast don't miss to visit Piedmont's ski runs, among the best in the Alps!

National Museum of Cinema

The Italian movie industry was born in Turin, and for this reason the country's largest film museum is located here. You will find it inside the Mole Antonelliana, a tall brick building from the top of which you can enjoy a magnificent view. It is a museum, but not in the traditional sense. Numerous interactive activities and unforeseen exhibitions can be admired and experienced.

Piazza Vittorio

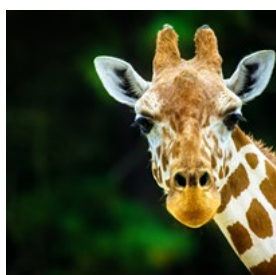

Piazza Vittorio is the main square of the city, and the biggest in Europe completely surrounded by arcades. It is located at the end of Via Po, overlooking the river and the bizarre church Gran Madre. Under its arches, the square houses restaurants, cafés and bars of all sorts, and by night it turns into one of the centres of Turin's movida. Don't miss a visit here by night, even just to admire its splendour enhanced by lights and shadows on the facades surrounding the square.

Piazza San Carlo

Piazza San Carlo is one of the most important squares in Turin's history. It is located between Porta Nuova and Via Roma. During the 19th and 20th centuries it used to be the main meeting point for elites and aristocracy, and the refinement of those days is still plain to see. In the background you can also admire the (almost-) twin churches, which can seem to be identical at first sight, but try to look a bit closer...

CAFES

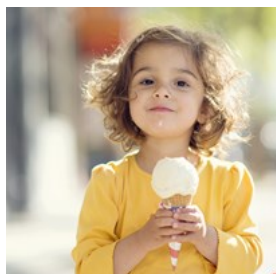

RossHelen/Shutterstock.com

Italy knows coffee, and Turin is no exception. In the city centre, you can find plenty of ancient cafes mirroring the splendour and elegance of days of old. Turin cafes are all about chocolate and gianduja cream (a mix of chocolate and nuts). Speaking of which, do not miss the chance to try Bicerin, a very tasty and beloved liquor. Last but not least, don't leave Italy before tasting a real Italian ice cream.

A very typical Turin tradition is the apericena (halfway between aperitif and dinner) served in almost all bars and cafes of the city, for which normally one pays for the drink and gets various dishes with it. It is the ideal meal to start your night in this amazing city.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Fabio Lamanna/Shutterstock.com

Turin's nightlife is impressively varied. No matter what your tastes are, you will certainly find something for you. From the elegant bars located on Piazza Vittorio, to the alternative pubs and clubs in Santa Giulia and Quadrilatero, to the real heart of Turin nightlife in San Salvario, each neighbourhood has its own style. It's up to you decide which one suits you best.

During spring and summer, local revelers enjoy their drinks outdoors, in the large terraces of bars or simply in Valentino Park sitting on the banks of the Po. Normally clubs open at around 11pm, but they only start to get crowded at around 1am. Furthermore, if you are a real party-enthusiast, you can even enjoy some after parties from 6am until 12am.

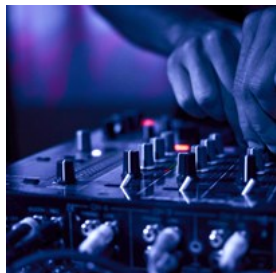

Hiroshima Mon Amour

Hiroshima Mon Amour opened in 1989, and since then it has hosted all kinds of events. Some examples of artists who have performed here? Patti Smith, Kraftwerk, Sinéad O'Connor, Astor Piazzola, Joan Baez, Bob Dylan and many more. On its two floors you can find three dancefloors and stages, where something different happens every night.

SHOPPING

Syda Productions/Shutterstock.com

Much like dining and nightlife, your shopping experience can also vary according to the neighbourhood. In the Quadrilatero Romano area, you will find various ethnic, second-hand and artists' shops. But if you are looking for something more sophisticated, you can walk under the arcades of Via Roma and along Via Lagrange, where all the major designer brands have their boutiques. On Via Garibaldi and Via Po, the two main roads to Piazza Vittorio, there are plenty of little stores selling clothes, accessories and local products. Last but not least, if you want to experience a genuine Italian market, you cannot miss Porta Palazzo Market: the biggest in Europe, merging into one farmers, fish and second-hand markets. This last is particularly famous - it is called Balon, and walking among its stalls bargaining with sellers is certainly a unique experience.

Porta Palazzo Market

Porta Palazzo is the multicultural area of Turin, here you can meet people from all over the world. In its large square, the biggest market in Europe takes place daily. Public Transport

GTT Company manages the public transport network in Turin. This network consists of charming trams, trains, one subway line and about 100 bus lines, also covering the suburbs and the towns nearby. GTT also has a number of tourist services like the historic Superga rack tramway, boats on the river Po and City Sightseeing buses.

Daily/weekly/monthly passes and multi-day tickets are available in any tobacconist and newsstand of the city, or you can buy them from the vending machines in the metro stops. Do not forget to stamp your ticket once in the vehicle.

Taxi

The two main taxi companies in Turin are Pronto Taxi and Radio Taxi. Italian Taxis are white cars with the number on their side and the sign "TAXI" on top. When you get in, be sure to check if the metre is turned on, and avoid unofficial cabs. Normally, in Italy you find taxi stands in the hotspots of the city and near stations, airports and main squares.
